DETAILED ACTION

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 4-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Sipe (522) in view of McGrath et al.

Sipe, Figs. 1, 3, 7 and 9 show a plurality of terminals 127, prongs 128 are read as the recited compliant sections 128, a main board 910, a plurality of sub-boards 130 equipped with land (332, 326), contact sections 310, a mating connector 200, a housing (110, 120, 140). Sipe does not show a part of land which is close to the edge being narrower than the remainder of the land. McGrath et al, fig. 3 shows a part of land (44a, 44b) which is close to the edge being narrower than the remainder of land 44. It would have been obvious to one with skill in the art to modify the connector of Sipe by forming a part of land close to the edge to be narrower than the remainder of the land, as taught by McGrath, in order to provide an improved edge connector that operates with impedances in high-speed signal applications. Also, it appears that the distance between the terminal-side edge and the lands in the Sipe or in the McGrath is less than or equal to 0.3 millimeters. However, to form the distance between the terminal-side edge and the lands in the Sipe or in view of the McGrath to be less than or equal to 0.3 millimeters would have been obvious to one with skill in the art, since it has been held that discovering an optimum value of a result effective variable involves only routine skill in the art. In re Boesch, 617 F.2d 272, 205 USPQ 215 (CCPA 1980).

3. Applicant's arguments filed 12/19/05 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

In response to applicant's argument that there is no suggestion to combine the references, the examiner recognizes that obviousness can only be established by combining or modifying the teachings of the prior art to produce the claimed invention where there is some teaching, suggestion, or motivation to do so found either in the references themselves or in the knowledge generally available to one of ordinary skill in the art. See In re Fine, 837 F.2d 1071, 5 USPQ2d 1596 (Fed. Cir. 1988) and In re Jones, 958 F.2d 347, 21 USPQ2d 1941 (Fed. Cir. 1992). However, there is no requirement that a motivation to make the modification be expressly articulated. The test for combining references is what the combination of disclosures taken as a whole would suggest to one of ordinary skill in the art. In re McLaughlin, 170 USPQ 209 (CCPA 1971). References are evaluated by what they suggest to one versed in the art, rather than by their specific disclosures. In re Bozek, 163 USPQ 545 (CCPA) 1969.

The other remarks are considered being fully addressed in the rejection above.
